VILNIUS

Officially established in 1323, Vilnius is the largest city and the capital of Lithuania. Its Old Town is one of the largest (360 ha) and prettiest in Eastern and Central Europe and is included on the UNESCO World Heritage List. There are 542,932 inhabitants in Vilnius. The city is a cultural and economical centre and one of the most rapidly developing Lithuanian cities with a large concentration of administrative authority and business entities.

Geography. Vilnius is situated in south-eastern Lithuania at the confluence of two rivers. It is believed that Vilnius, like many other cities, was named after the river flowing through it, the Vilnia. In 1989, the National Geographical Institute of France determined that the geographical centre of Europe lies 24 km northwest of Vilnius. The current area of Vilnius is 402 sq km. Buildings cover 20.2% of the city and in the remaining areas are covered by greenery (43,9%) and water (2,1%).

Weather. The average annual temperature is +6.1 °C (43 °F). In January, the average temperature is -5.5 °C (20.5 °F), in July it is +17 °C (62.5 °F). Summers can be really hot in Vilnius (up to 30 °C) and winters can be very cold. Temperatures below -25 °C are not unheard-of in January and February. Vilnius' rivers freeze over in particularly cold winters, and the lakes surrounding the city are almost always permanently frozen during this time of the year.

Hotels. Vilnius offers a wide range of accommodation options, varying from international chain hotels to small family owned boutique hotels. There are 66 hotels, 4,297 rooms, and 8,400 beds in Vilnius. Many hotels are situated in the Old Town and the city centre.
